PART I

Michaela Kindle

*1974 · FREIBURG

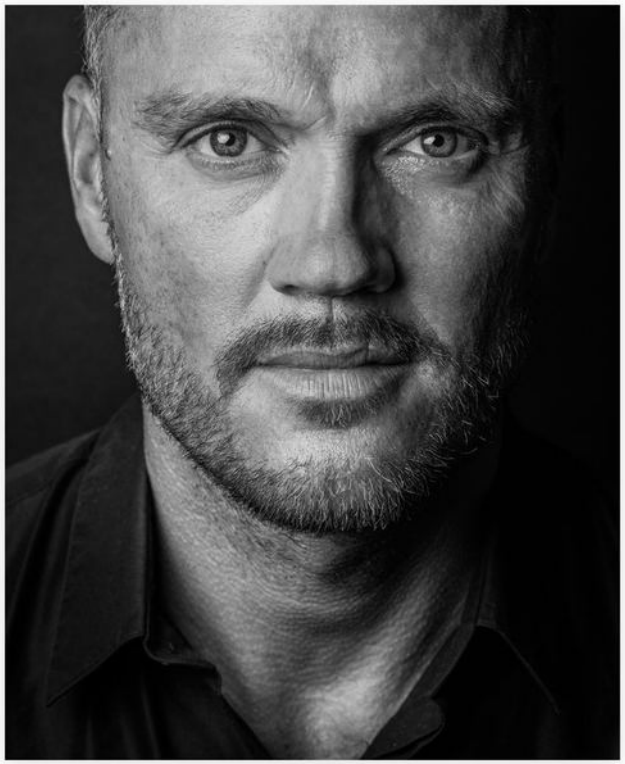

Michaela Kindle is an artist and photographer whose work explores the boundaries between reality, dream, and inner perception. Her photography studies and formative years in Los Angeles, along with a stay in London, laid the foundation for her particular passion for composing – the creative fusion of photographic elements into new, autonomous visual worlds.

In her digital photo collages, she brings together nature, animals, people, spaces, and symbolic elements in multilayered compositions that unite the poetic with the surreal and the familiar with the unexpected. In doing so, she has developed a distinctive visual language that reaches beyond what is immediately visible.

Her works revolve around themes such as memory and longing, identity and change. They tell of inner journeys and processes of transformation, opening up pictorial spaces in which the familiar takes on new meaning. With photographic precision and a fine sense of atmosphere, Michaela Kindle creates images that invite the viewer to pause and continue to resonate long afterward.

Alongside her own artistic work, she develops the series Fragments of a Forgotten Symphony together with Daniel Ricardo González under the name Kindle & González. In it, González's photographs of abandoned places marked by the traces of time merge with Kindle's poetic image compositions. At its heart are transience and renewal, and the possibility of discovering new life in what seemed to be lost.

PART II

Kindle & González

MICHAELA KINDLE
DANIEL RICARDO GONZÁLEZ

Michaela Kindle and Daniel Ricardo González are two artists whose distinct life paths and longstanding friendship converged in 2018 to form an inspiring artistic partnership. Since then, they have been merging their individual perspectives into expressive, collaborative works.

Michaela studied photography in the United States, where she discovered her fascination with the narrative and emotional potential of digital image creation. Her artistic signature is characterized by a refined sensitivity in her use of color, symbolism, and intuitive compositing. In her works, real elements merge with poetic layers, opening up new, multi-dimensional visual worlds.

Daniel is a passionate photographer and world traveler with a particular fascination for forgotten places and their quiet histories. His journeys have taken him to numerous countries, where, with a keen sensitivity to light, space, and atmosphere, he captures visual traces of the past. His documentary approach provides a strong foundation for their collaboration.

What unites Michaela Kindle and Daniel Ricardo González is a shared longing for pictorial spaces that extend far beyond the visible. Their works are not linear narratives, but fleeting fragments of a journey through time – memories that drift like mist across landscapes, at times tangible, at times distant. They open spaces for contemplation, where perception and remembrance are entwined in a delicate dance.

Fragments of a Forgotten Symphony

In their series “Fragments of a Forgotten Symphony,” Michaela Kindle and Daniel Ricardo González create fascinating digital photo collages in which abandoned spaces, marked by the passage of time, are interwoven with vibrant elements such as blossoms, animals, plants, and the silent presence of female figures. This connection between decay and new life forms a powerful metaphor for the cycle of transience and return.

The collages are more than mere visual compositions – they are a dialogue between past and present, between reality and imagination. In the emptied spaces once filled with life, the present germinates: Nature permeates the old, causing it to blossom, and tells stories that live on in silence.

With emotional depth and surreal imagery, Kindle and González create a visual microcosm of human experience – a mosaic of memory, nature, and hope.

Mingle

In the still structure of change, opposites converge to open space for the unexpected. Light breaks through the familiar, turning fixed order into a living, open dialogue. What was once separate now stands quietly connected – a gentle sign of ongoing transformation.

Resurrection

From the heart of decay, a whisper grows that knows change – soft, yet unstoppable. Silence fills the space between what was and what will be, until it begins to glow. A rising breeze of memory and resonance sweeps through, carrying the quiet certainty of awakening. Here, strength begins.

Six Feet Above

A delicate step into the unknown, where horizons stretch wider. A flow between worlds, where the familiar shifts and new paths appear like distant lights. It’s a hovering in between – a quiet awakening lifting the soul into new dimensions.

Liaison

In subtle shifts between memory and departure, a quiet strength grows – gentle, yet relentless. Where past and future, human and nature, closeness and distance touch, a fleeting but deep harmony emerges.

Moonstruck

As we release, the old fades away – like shadows dissolving into the night. A quiet space opens, woven from unseen threads of what was always meant to be. Something new stirs, soft but sure, ready to unfold. Between the ending and the beginning, a delicate balance lingers – tender, timeless, drawn by the pull of what's next.

Rest

Time moves in soft circles, weaving a veil of fleeting memories and unspoken longings. Where the past meets the present, an invisible thread pulls the soul gently home – tender, yet impossible to escape. A quiet dance of letting go and yearning keeps a place in the heart alive – one that time cannot erase.

If

Between farewell and anticipation, a quiet wonder flickers – a pause where memory and possibility overlap. From time's current, something new forms, shaped by movement, light, and soft contrast. At the meeting of opposites, a gentle conversation begins – fragile as a breath, strong as a fresh start. Here lies the quiet promise of what might be.

Resilience

Resilience is not shown in rebellion, but in quiet unfolding. Amidst rupture and emptiness, new life is forming – not beyond the wound, but out of it. What seems fragile often contains the greatest strength: the ability to transform, to shine, to stay.

Showtime

The curtain never truly fell – only time passed. In this hushed grandeur, instinct writes the overture, and nature takes its place under a dome of memory and light. Where walls remember dreams and silence blooms with color, the wild soul awakens – undaunted, untamed, eternal. A sanctuary not of stone, but of spirit.

Masquerade

In calm silence, decay and renewal meet as time flows softly through layers of being, shaping a self that’s always moving. The world blurs at the edges, blending memory and possibility. Nothing disappears; everything shifts gently, endlessly onward.

Early Bird

In the face of decay, a delicate blossom emerges – a silent trace of what remains. Between the fading past and the emerging future, an invisible energy lingers, hovering between stagnation and becoming.

Menagerie

In the shadow of faded grandeur, the quiet play of comparison unfolds – those unseen measures that draw lines between us. Between delicate weightlessness and proud display, a tension emerges: longing and self-doubt intertwined. Yet in the release of comparison, true strength reveals itself: an inner striving, not to shine, but to grow – freely, authentically, and unshakably.

SERIES 02

The Unseen Presence

The Unseen Presence moves within a quiet in-between space of transformation, trust, and inner closeness. The works tell of moments in which something shifts within a person – softly, almost imperceptibly – and yet changes everything.

The figures appear blurred and incomplete, as if caught in a state of transition. Individual details emerge from the haze like fragile hints of orientation, connection, and a light that does not come from outside but is already present. The animals appear as quiet, intuitive companions.

The series revolves around letting go and the experience of being carried, even in times of searching or uncertainty. Not everything has to be visible or explicable right away. Some things unfold only in stillness – in the willingness to slow down, to look more closely, and to trust what reveals itself only gradually.

Surrender	19
This Little Light	20
What We Carry	21
Revelation	22
Fading	23

Surrender

...reveals itself in the moment when holding on becomes harder than letting go. It is this threshold at which trust quietly overcomes control – and something new begins to open.

This Little Light

...follows those moments in which everything turns forward – toward the place where we look for support, orientation, or answers. And yet what truly carries us often appears away from what we are searching for – quiet, constant, and present.

What We Carry

...moves between the visible and what can only be sensed quietly within us. It revolves around inner traces that do not reveal themselves at once, but find their place and meaning only over time. Some paths reveal themselves gently – not through certainty, but through trust, intuition, and the willingness to follow what stirs deep within us.

Revelation

...describes the gradual emergence of something that had previously remained hidden. Clarity does not arrive suddenly, but like a slow shift in perception. Meaning reveals itself in layers, in fragments, and unfolds only with time.

Fading

...lingers in that brief in-between space where the tangible and what eludes it touch. Some encounters cannot be explained and yet leave behind something familiar.

SERIES 03

Dreams & Expectations

Dreams & Expectations leads into surreal visual worlds in which dreams, longings, and the often contradictory expectations placed on the individual become powerfully and poetically visible. Between fantasy and reality, childlike imagination and social norms, visual stories emerge about identity, origin, and self-assertion.

Textiles, patterns, animals, plants, and everyday objects serve as metaphors for cultural imprinting, family expectations, and personal dreams. The works unite melancholy with hope, seriousness with playfulness.

SERIES 04

The Path of a Dreamer

A visual journey through inner landscapes of transformation, longing, and quiet strength.

The Path of a Dreamer unfolds in that sensitive in-between space where inner movement and stillness meet – where change does not announce itself loudly, but reveals itself quietly, in subtle, deeply felt shifts.

Each work opens a moment of transition, a threshold between what has been and what is only beginning to emerge.

Awakening	32
Whispers	33
Healing	34
Rising Above	35
Almost	36

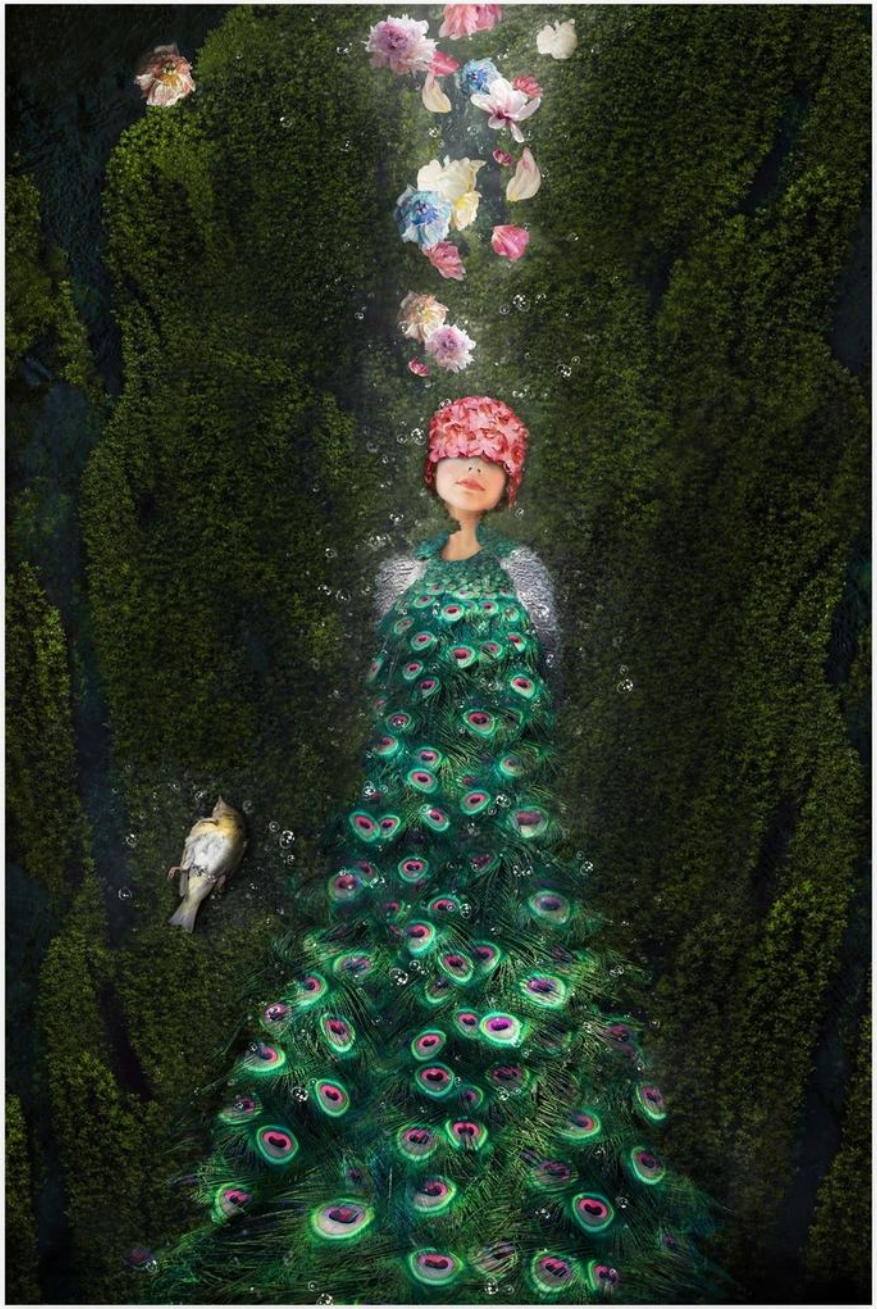

Awakening

The moment in which the hidden finds its voice. Something shifts within, barely audible and yet deeply felt. Out of the silence, a new clarity takes shape. What reveals itself was always there – only hidden beneath layers of the past.

Whispers

A dialogue between inner strength and tender vulnerability reveals itself in the subtle tension of opposites. Hidden voices become tangible, quiet impulses emerge – deeply rooted, yet heard anew time and again.

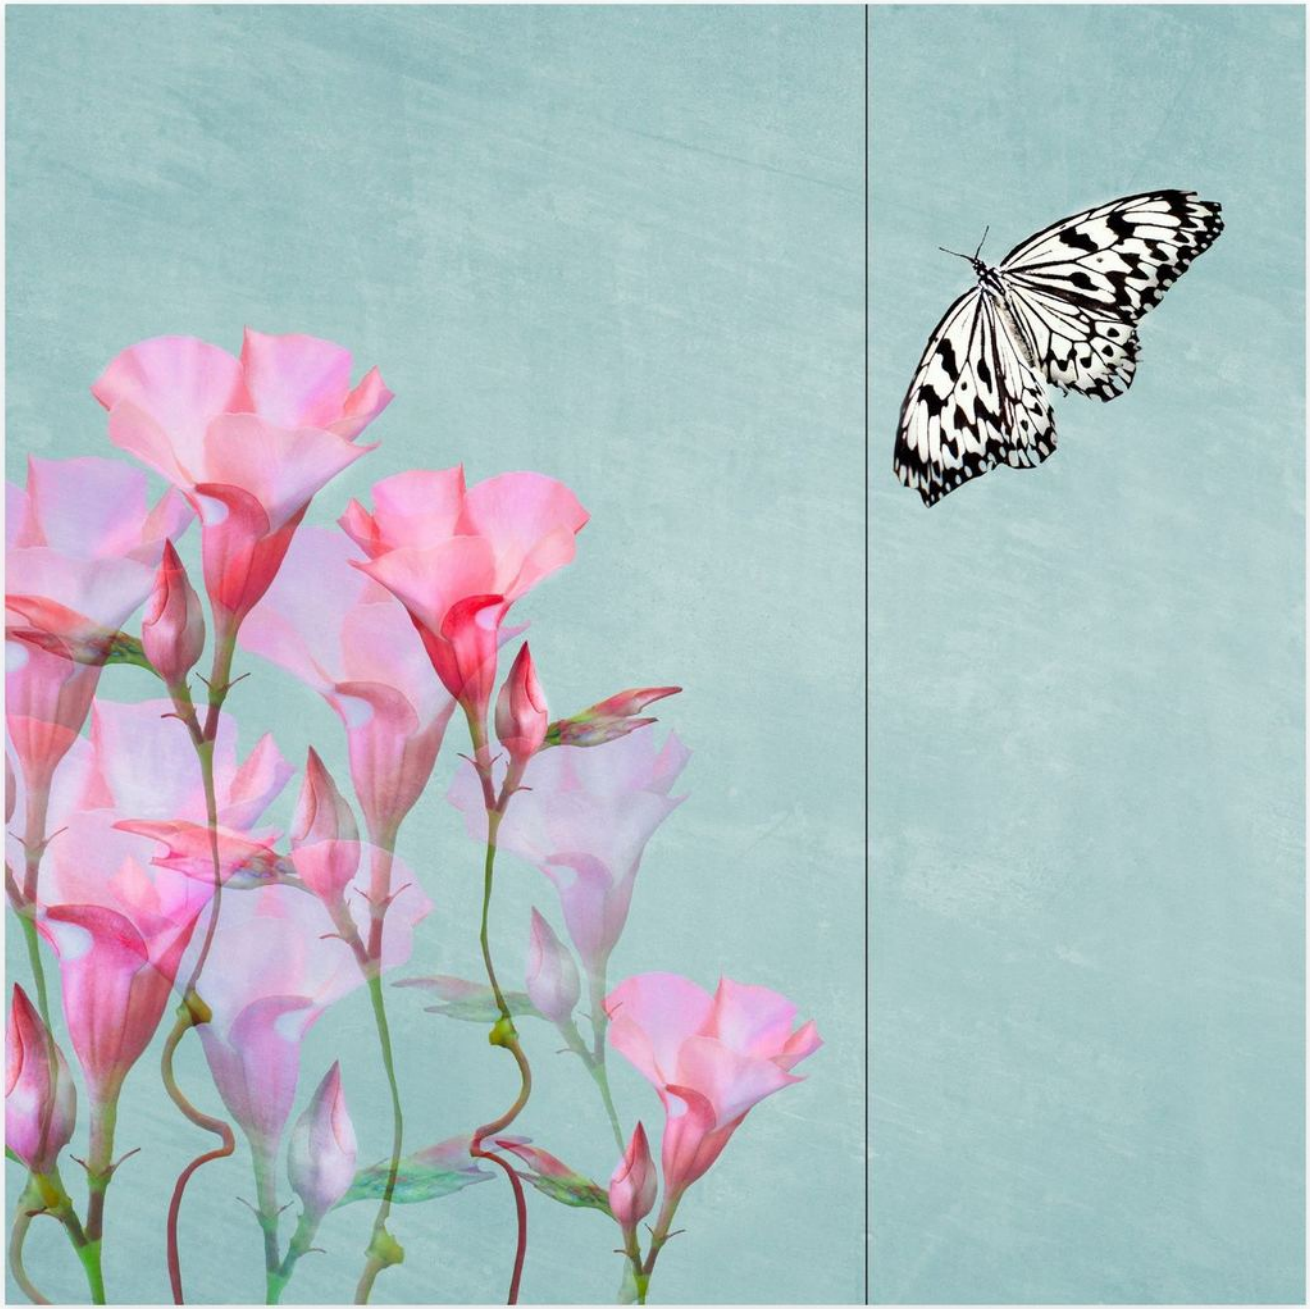

Healing

In the quiet dialogue between transience and new beginnings, the gentle poetry of healing unfolds. Memory lingers at the edge, while from above a breath of awakening drifts down. Colors and forms merge into an image of transition – delicate, suspended, full of suggestion – in which pain and transformation meet in a very special way.

Rising Above

From the depths of the past rises a quiet strength that widens the view and opens new paths. Within lies the quiet ability to pass through shadows and grow beyond them. Thus space unfolds for change and hope, carried by a gentle, steadfast courage.

Almost

In the tension of the unfinished moment lies a quiet beauty that invites us to pause. The fine line between longing and fulfillment conveys a yearning whose power surpasses completion. In this space of the almost, the essence of our deepest wishes reveals itself – a quiet echo that reminds us: often it is the striving itself that carries the true journey.
